The Members of the A-APRP (GC) are ideological recruits, recruited to be disciplined yet compassionate Pan-Africanist socialist revolutionaries, the new men and women of Africa who “always guide and protect the children [and are committed to] always be the servant of the people.” [Kwame Nkrumah, Handbook of Revolutionary Warfare, Rules of Discipline.] We want our Members to be known for their character, honesty, integrity, modesty and humility and to be genuine examples of the revolutionary African Personality. At the same time, our Members must be content in and with the new emerging and developing revolutionary culture of Africa. These are the true men and women of Africa who thrive on their understanding and resolve that Revolution is an act of culture.

The A-APRP (GC) recruits and works to develop the women and men, called for by Kwame Nkrumah, Sekou Toure, and Kwame Ture. These men and women have committed themselves to African people's and the world's revolutionary struggle against all forms of corruption, economic exploitation and political oppression. Our Members study the principles of Nkrumahism-Toureism and are learning to allow our lives and their relationships, particularly between our women and men, to be guided by its collectivist, humanist, egalitarian and socialist principles.

The Members of the A-APRP (GC) have chosen class struggle as our foundation creed affirming that the starting point of the class struggle is to "know [and confront] the enemy within" [Ibid.], and to be uncompromising in our commitment to the struggle for the liberation and political unification of Africa under scientific socialism and the victory of Pan-Africanism over capitalism, neo-colonialism, settler-colonialism, zionism, and imperialism. It is this struggle which must become the primary focus of our Members' life-long work. The Members of the A-APRP (GC) must never “take a single needle or piece of thread from the masses. [Ibid.] Our passion must be derived from our willingness to be servants of the almighty People, as we have consciously and diligently forsaken a life of leisure and have cast our fate with the oppressed, exploited, and impoverished African Masses and with all of Oppressed Humanity.

The All-African People's Revolutionary Party (GC)'s Recruitment and Orientation Brochure #2 provides potential Members with some facts about when, how and why the Party was conceived and organized, an overview of the Party's Membership structure and process, who can join it, their rights and responsibilities. This is a living document subject to changes based on material conditions.

Who Can Join?

Every political movement, organization and party---revolutionary, reformist, or reactionary---has an ideology and objective, even if they are not conscious of it, and it is not codified, written down or named. Every revolutionary movement, organization and party makes their own unique contribution to the forward march and development, to the dialectic of revolutionary theory and practice---universal and particular. The fundamental task of every revolutionary movement, organization and party is to determine the human/motive forces of the revolution, its members, supporters and allies, and its enemies.

More than 1 billion Africans live in 69 zones (countries, islands, territories and dependencies) on the Continent of Africa, and more than 500 million Africans live in at least 175 zones (countries, islands, territories and dependencies) in Asia, Oceania, the Americas and Europe. We are One African People, Citizens of One Continental African Nation, with One Common Objective, Pan-Africanism, which Osagefyo Kwame Nkrumah has correctly defined as the total liberation and unification of Africa under scientific socialism.

All persons living or born on the Continent of Africa, who are citizens of its zones (countries and islands) and all persons of African descent---politically, culturally or historically, living in the African Diaspora, at an age culturally and legally appropriate to their People and country are eligible to join the A-APRP (GC).
